Customer Reviews

This is NOT my favorite coloring book that I have. Not by a longshot. It sounded like a good idea, when I saw it and read about it. The idea of blacked out pages appealed to me, since I like coloring with a multitude of tools (colored pencils, markers, pens, etc.). The blacked out pages help prevent the bleed through that you get with stronger and deeper colors. The book is advertised as a book with 60 pictures to color, which it DOES have, and if you read the review of the book, you'll see that it mentions that there are two copies of each ANIMAL, which gives you 60 pages. If there was more to the page than just the animal (like say, the dog on the cover with the scarf and goggles), then it would make more sense to have duplicate copies of the same picture, because then at least all of the accessories to the animal could change the picture dramatically. But, that is not what you get. What you get is the animal and JUST the animal. What's worse, in my opinion, is that there is so much black in some of the pictures (actually, most of the pictures) that there really isn't enough to color. And since there are no background designs, no decorations on the animals and virtually little space on the animals themselves to color, it seems (again, just in my opinion) that the book is less than what I expected. In addition, they just aren't the intricate designs that I've become accustomed to from the other coloring books I have. I was disappointed. I don't think it deserves the 4 stars that I ended up giving it, but I do think it deserves more than 3 stars, because the animals are cute and interesting. Since there isn't a 3.5 star option, I gave the seller the bump up for the double image coloring potential.
